Once upon a time, in a kingdom far, far away, lived Princess Isabella who had a heart as big as her castle.

But the princess was lonely. She wished for a true friend who would understand her and share her adventures.

One day, while exploring the enchanted forest beyond the castle, Princess Isabella heard a soft whimper coming from behind a thicket.

There she found a young dragon with emerald green scales, caught in a hunter's net. Without hesitation, she helped free the dragon.

As thanks, the dragon promised to be her loyal friend. From that day forward, Princess Isabella and the dragon explored the kingdom together.

They shared many adventures, from discovering hidden treasures to saving villagers from danger. Their bond grew stronger with each passing day.

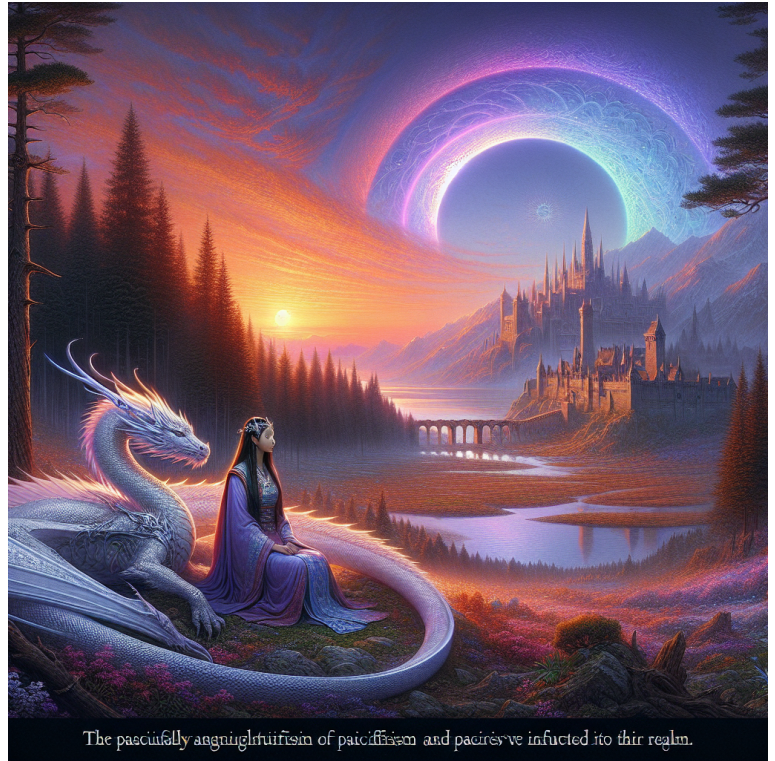

But the greatest adventure of all was the day the dragon taught Princess Isabella how to fly.

Together, they realized that friendship was the most powerful magic of all, capable of overcoming any challenge.

And so, Princess Isabella and her dragon friend lived happily ever after, their friendship a beacon of hope and joy in the kingdom.
